

PLATE LII.

PAGE
261

Semperella schultzei, Semper,

Fig. 1. Ideal transverse section through the middle portion ; natural size.

Fig. 2. A specimen, preserved in alcohol, with a Palythoa investment on the basal tuft ; probably a young specimen ; natural size.

Fig. 3. External part of a transverse section of the young specimen shown in fig. 2 (combination figure) ;  $\times 20$ . The pinuli in the outer side of the terminal oscular sieve-plates have been erroneously omitted.

Fig. 4. Oxyhexact with two long echinated and four short smooth rays ;  $\times 100$ .

Fig. 5. Oxyhexact with straight echinated rays ;  $\times 100$ .

Fig. 6. Fragment of dermal skeleton ;  $\times 100$ .

Fig. 7. Small amphidisc ;  $\times 300$ .