

PLATE LXXXIV.

Figs. 1-8. Aphrocallistes bocagei, Wright,

PAGE

313

- Fig. 1. Transverse section of the wall ; $\times 60$.
- Fig. 2. An uncinatum ; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 3. Dermal scopula with long, knobbed prongs ; $\times 450$.
- Fig. 4. Dermal scopula with knobbed prongs of usual length ; $\times 450$.
- Fig. 5. Dermal scopula with long, divergent, pointed prongs ; $\times 450$.
- Fig. 6. Oxyhexaster with rays of equal length ; $\times 450$.
- Fig. 7. Oxyhexaster, one of whose axes is somewhat longer than the other two ;
 $\times 450$.
- Fig. 8. Dermal hexact pinulus ; $\times 450$.

Figs. 9, 10. Aphrocallistes beatrix, Gray,

311

- Fig. 9. Oxyhexaster with two elongated, smooth, principal rays on one axis, and simple pointed rays on the other two ; $\times 450$.
- Fig. 10. Oxyhexaster with two very long, echinated, principal rays on the one axis, and simple pointed rays on the other two ; $\times 450$.