

PLATE LXXXI.

Periphragella elisæ, Marshall,

PAGE

299

- Fig. 1. A fragment, preserved in alcohol; natural size.
- Fig. 2. Transverse section of the wall (combination figure); $\times 50$.
- Fig. 3. Dermal scopula with straight knobbed prongs and shaft; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 4. Discohexaster; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 5. Oxyhexaster with divergent terminal rays; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 6. Dermal scopula with divergent knobbed prongs; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 7. Small uncinatum; $\times 300$.
- Fig. 8. Dermal pentact, whose radial ray ends in a club-shaped swelling; $\times 8$.
- Figs. 9, 10. Gastral scopulæ with S-shaped prongs and a club-shaped swelling at the end of the shaft; $\times 300$.