

Dulichia , Krøyer, 1845. "Formed from δουλιχός, long, with regard to the specially elongated form of the animal, the long antennæ, &c. The Ionic form is used to keep the name the more distinct from Dolichus already employed for the name of an Insect,"	213, 228, 256, 294, 295, 306, 328 396, 571, 580, 601
Dyopedos , Spence Bate, 1857. Perhaps from δύο, two, and πούς, foot, because in this genus the sixth and seventh pairs of feet are attached to one compound segment. (= Dulichia , Krøyer),	294, 295, 580
Egidea , a misspelling of Egidia , A. Costa.
Egidia , A. Costa, 1853. Proper name. Compare Latin Ægidius . (= Urothoe , Dana),	274, 296, 561, 580, 582
Eiscladus , Bate and Westwood, 1862. "εἶς, one, κλάδος, branch, in allusion to the structure of the posterior pair of pleopoda." (= Photis , Krøyer),	341, 396, 581
Elamis , Leach, MS., in White, 1847. (= Amphithoe , Leach),	222
Elasmocerus , A. Costa, 1851. ελασμός, lamina, κέρασ, horn, antenna,	248, 1278
Elasmopus , A. Costa, 1853. "From the Greek words ελασμός, lamina, and πούς, foot,"	274, 298, 296, 395, 580, 582, 1649
Enone , Risso, 1826. ? from Οἰνώνη, Enone , the nymph beloved by Paris,	128, 249
Ephippiphora , White, 1847. ἐπίππια, the trappings of a horse, φέρειν, to bear. Preoccupied, 1834,	177, 224, 270, 393, 500
Epidesma , a misspelling of Epidesura , Boeck.
Epidesura , Boeck, 1860. From ἐπιδεής, deficient, οὐρά, tail, the fifth and sixth segments of the pleon or tail being united into one. (= Atylus , Leach),	322, 324, 581
Epimeria , A. Costa, 1851. Probably so called from the epimera or side-plates, "Epimera quarti et quinti articuli thoracis maxima, simul clypeum semilunare formantia,"	249, 250, 296, 297, 395, 475 569, 877
Eratea , Rafinesque, 1815,	88
Erichthus , Latreille. Not an Amphipod genus,	134, 135, 148
Erichthoneus , misspelling of Erichthonius , Milne-Edwards.
Erichthonius , an alternative spelling for Erichthonius , Milne-Edwards, to correspond with the Greek original of the word,	170, 176, 200, 228, 255, 257, 258 268, 559, 571, 580, 581
Erichthonius , misspelling of Erichthonius , Milne-Edwards,	184, 312, 375
Erichthonius , Milne-Edwards, 1830. Ἐριχθόνιος, Erichthonius , a king of Athens,	142, 188, 285, 296, 299, 390, 396
Eriopsis , Bruzelius, 1859. "A daughter of Jason and Medea." Preoccupied. (= Niphargus , Schiødte),	313, 395, 581, 1656
Erpetoramphus , de Natale, 1850. ἐρπετόν, a creeping thing, βάμφος, a crooked beak,	248, 1623
Erysthoëus , misspelling of Eurystheus , Spence Bate,	583
Erysthræus , misspelling of Eurystheus , Spence Bate,	566
Erythrocephalus , Tilesius, 1819. ἐρυθρός, red, κεφαλή, head. "Rothkopf." An obscure genus of the Hyperina,	109, 135
Etione , misspelling of Enone , Risso (M.-Edw., 1830).
Euone , misspelling of Enone , Risso,	560
Euonyx , Norman, 1867. εὖ, well, ὄνυξ, nail. In the second gnathopods, unlike Anonyx , "nail large and strong,"	370, 668
Eupheus , Risso, 1816. εὖ, well, φαιός, dusky? (Agassiz), but more probably from εὐφύης, well fitted. (Synonym of Apseudes , generally reckoned an Isopod genus),	97, 129, 134
Eupronoë , Claus, 1879. εὖ, well, Pronoe , name of another genus,	241, 492, 591, 1509
Eurymera , Pfeffer, 1888. εὐρύς, broad, μηρός, thigh; "Epimeren ganz ausserordentlich gross, hoch und breit,"	1653
Eurysteus , misspelling of Eurystheus , Spence Bate,	544
Eurystheus , ¹ Spence Bate, 1856-7. A king of Mycenæ, the taskmaster of Hercules. (= Gammaropsis , Liljeborg),	286, 294, 328, 335, 580, 1092
Eurytenes , Liljeborg, 1865. "From the Greek εὐρυτενής, which signifies widely stretched." Preoccupied in 1862,	360, 393, 580
Eurythenes , ² S. I. Smith, 1884, either an accidental misspelling or intentional alteration of the preoccupied Eurytenes , Liljeborg,	557
Eurytheus , misspelling of Eurystheus , Spence Bate.
Eusceliotes , 1888, in place of Euscelus , Claus.
Euscelus , Claus, 1879. εὖ, well, σκέλος, leg. Preoccupied,	491, 591
Eusinus , misprint for Eusirus , Krøyer (Scudder, Nomenclator Zoologicus , p. 123).
Eusiroides , Stebbing, 1888,	969

¹ On the question of the priority of Eurystheus, see p. 1092.

² In the Note on S. I. Smith, 1884, p. 557, I have not reproduced the spelling Eurythenes, having regarded it as a casual misprint, but the same spelling is given in Scudder's Nomenclator Zoologicus on Professor Smith's authority.